

A long day on the road gets us from Albuquerque to Oklahoma City. By the time we get halfway there, it is pouring rain, a fitting way to make the transition from xeric to mesic environment. Lots of rangeland along the way but not much to see in terms of horticulture, at least from the highway. In the heart of OK city, however, is an oasis - Myriad Botanical Gardens and the Crystal Bridge, a unique cylindrical conservatory.

A Postcard from Cathy Neal