

I attended the joint eastern and western region meeting of the Intl. Plant Propagators Society in Denver in mid-September. Besides learning lots about new plants including alpines and western natives, we toured several nurseries and garden centers in the area. The perennials at the wholesale nursery below will all be moved into the hoop houses for winter. The garden center on the right has it's own "little schoolhouse", surrounded by demonstration plantings, where they do classes and seminars for the public.

A Postcard from Cathy Neal