Located in the southwestern corner of the state, Cheshire County is home to the iconic Mount Monadnock (3,165 ft.) and the Connecticut and Ashuelot rivers. This past year, the county's forester made 70 woodlot visits to private landowners to help them manage their forests, residents attended programs about soil conservation and forage crop production, and 4-H youth spent over 400 hours making a difference in their communities through service projects. 4-H'er Alexandra said, "4-H has helped me spread my wings, pushed me to jump and is still teaching me to fly."
